Q6. I have only worked long term in one school in England, can day-to-day supply in other schools count for my other school experience.

- A. No, you must have detailed evidence of meeting the standards in two schools in England, short term supply would not provide this

OTTs need to demonstrate they have a breadth and variety of experience in schools or other settings to enable them to meet all the Teachers' Standards for QTS. They need to have taught children and young people from different backgrounds, across the ability range and in their chosen age ranges, as well as gaining experience of different approaches to teaching and learning and to school organisation and management.

The criterion specifies that candidates must have taught in two schools prior to entry to the AO route. Candidates must also show experience of teaching across their chosen age ranges and must be able to demonstrate that they have met all the standards for QTS for these age ranges. Practical teaching experience for the purposes of AO is not restricted to taking place wholly or mainly in England, There may be circumstances where previous teaching may have taken place outside England and is suitable to be considered by a provider. For example, an applicant who has taught in a British Schools Overseas, and has clear, quality-assured, evidence of meeting some of the standards for QTS. The Teachers' Standards can be found at the following link: <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/teachers-standards>
